Indulgence among the treetops

Noonaweena is one of those special places spoken in whispers, the kind that is hidden in a location you might not expect. Overlooking the awesome Yengo National Park at the gateway to the Hunter Valley, Noonaweena is a purpose-built retreat for couples who need time out and groups seeking a secluded get-together in a place of stunning beauty.

The interior design of the various retreats is sumptuous yet unpretentious, the recreation facilities are fabulous and the restful atmosphere calls on you to commune with nature.

Couples will gravitate to the one- and two-bedroom retreats such as Boronia or Treetops, which are fully self-contained pleasure havens.

A group could opt for the grand gesture and choose the very contemporary Gynea house. All are blessed with decks overlooking escarpment and garden views.

In Treetops, the kitchen is a rainbow of vibrant hues and the king bedroom a spacious nest, complete with a restful bay window lounge. Each retreat is blessed with engaging art and interior tones that are in harmony with the natural surrounds.

All the facilities one could hope for are here, including a tennis court and a parkland garden to explore. You are also right on the food and winery trail with roads branching out towards dozens of cellar doors.
